

A hand-drawn diagram of a book. It features a central square page, which is slightly larger than the surrounding pages. To the left of the central page are three rectangular pages, and to the right are three rectangular pages. All pages are outlined in black and are arranged in a way that suggests they are part of a single volume. The drawing is simple and schematic, focusing on the layout of the pages rather than the book's cover or binding details.

